

STUDY AT GLENDON AND IN SEVILLE, SPAIN THIS WINTER / SUMMER 2018

GL/SP 4706 6.0 Hispanic Geopoetics

Instructor: Alejandro Zamora, PhD.

This year, the course Hispanic Geopoetics will focus on the work of the Spanish poet Luis Cernuda, who lived in exile for 35 years. We will explore the interplay between memory and geography in his poetry, and pursue our explorations in his hometown, Seville, in a 15-day field trip.

We will tackle questions such as how the space (home, city, neighborhoods) is represented and given meaning, what role did it play in the subjectivity of the poet throughout his life, why it is relevant to the understanding of the experiences that shaped his aesthetic imagination and literary work.

We will also have some tapas!

Offered at Glendon College, York University, during the winter term of 2018

The field trip will run from May 2nd to May 16th

Students from other universities can take this course on a letter of permission

York students can apply for funding through York International

LA&PS students may have additional funding from their faculty

INFO SESSION

Monday, Oct. 23, 2:00 PM
YH A301, Glendon
spanish@glendon.yorku.ca

glendon.yorku.ca/hispanic-studies/courses/geopoetics/