Harper's Economics - Ideological, Pragmatic or Populist?

Guest Speaker / Conférencier:

Mr. Eugene Lang

BMO Visiting Fellow

Special Advisor (Policy) Canadian Association of Defence and Security Industries and former Finance Canada official

The Harper government's economic and fiscal agenda has been variously characterized by commentators as deeply ideologically conservative, a betrayal of conservative economic principles, little more than economically illiterate retail politics, and a pragmatic response to today's policy challenges. Can it be all of these things? What is the essence of Harpernomics? And why does the Harper economic agenda matter for the role of the federal government going forward?
